

Animals

Toy Horses

Toy horses are common enough to deserve their own subheading. Horses seem to have most commonly been cut from planks as two dimensional silhouettes, but often have realistic anatomical details and may have originally been brightly painted. However, more elaborate examples of toy horses are known from extant examples or literary references. For example, in Chapter 12 of Víga-Glúms saga, there is a scene familiar to many modern parents. A young boy of about six years old decides that he has outgrown his bronze toy horse and gives it to a toddler, explaining that it is more appropriate to the younger child. (www.hurstwic.org/history/articles/daily_living/text/games_and_sports.htm)

Top Left: Willow boat from Kvivik, Stallion from Kvivik, and a Norwegian horse. V2C

Top Right: Toy horse from Trondheim, Norway, c.1075-1125CE. V2C

Bottom: Wood horse from 8-9 century St Petersburg. V2C page 301.

I am particularly interested in the bottom example. The caption identifies this as being a horse, but with its long, lithe neck, it almost appears to be a dragon or sea serpent rather than a horse. The story of the Loch Ness Monster is a period story and dragons feature in multiple Viking tales, so it is possible that this could be some sort of monster instead of yet another horse.

There is an online tutorial for anyone wishing to replicate cutout wooden horses:
<http://www.angelfire.com/wy/svenskildbiter/Viking/vikhorse.html>

Other Animals

Left: Hedgehog or Pig from <http://www.britarch.ac.uk/ba/ba103/news.shtml>

Right: Duck from Birka from <http://tinyurl.com/dxdrts>

The hedgehog predates the Norse period, but was just too cute to pass up. The chalk hedgehog/pig was buried with an infant near Stonehenge (c100BC).

The carved antler duck from Birka, however, is from within the proper Norse period.

There has been some speculation that a carved amber cat is some sort of votive item since it is made of a semi-precious material. However, while it is reasonably well done, it is not particularly finely made and I like to think that some doting Viking daddy carved it for his favorite daughter. (Amber cat illustrated in the article “The Importance of Amber” in the supporting documents)

Dolls

Dolls of common types (reconstructions) Doll clothes from the Caucasus, 8-9th century

Left: http://www.hurstwic.org/history/articles/daily_living/text/games_and_sports.htm

Right: http://www.hermitagemuseum.org/html/En/08/hm88_0_0_20_1.html

A variety of carved wooden children's toys from the period have been found, including dolls, horses, ships, and other figures. Sadly, I have yet to track down illustrations of the original doll finds, but at the above left are some reconstructions from the Hurstwic website. There is an example of a “stump doll” from 12th century Novgorod, but it is a simple style with the head and swaddled body carved out of a single block that easily could have been used for some time before that particular find.

One of the difficulties in identifying dolls is that they are sometimes misclassified as devotional items or house spirits and vice versa. For example – the doll clothes from Russia shown above are very complicated – they could either be from a figure used in some adult context as a votive item or the plaything of a very loved or spoiled little girl. Without knowing the context, it is impossible to say.

Balls

Balls are a universal child's toy and examples of leather balls of several different styles are known from Anglo-Scandinavian and medieval York. Balls could be made of two pieces, two pieces with a dart, three pieces, four pieces, or more. Balls were usually of leather and then stuffed with moss or a wood core. (See the supporting documents for options from York - L&L.)

The Hurstwic webpage also lists felt balls as a Viking plaything, but I have not actually found any independent verification of such.

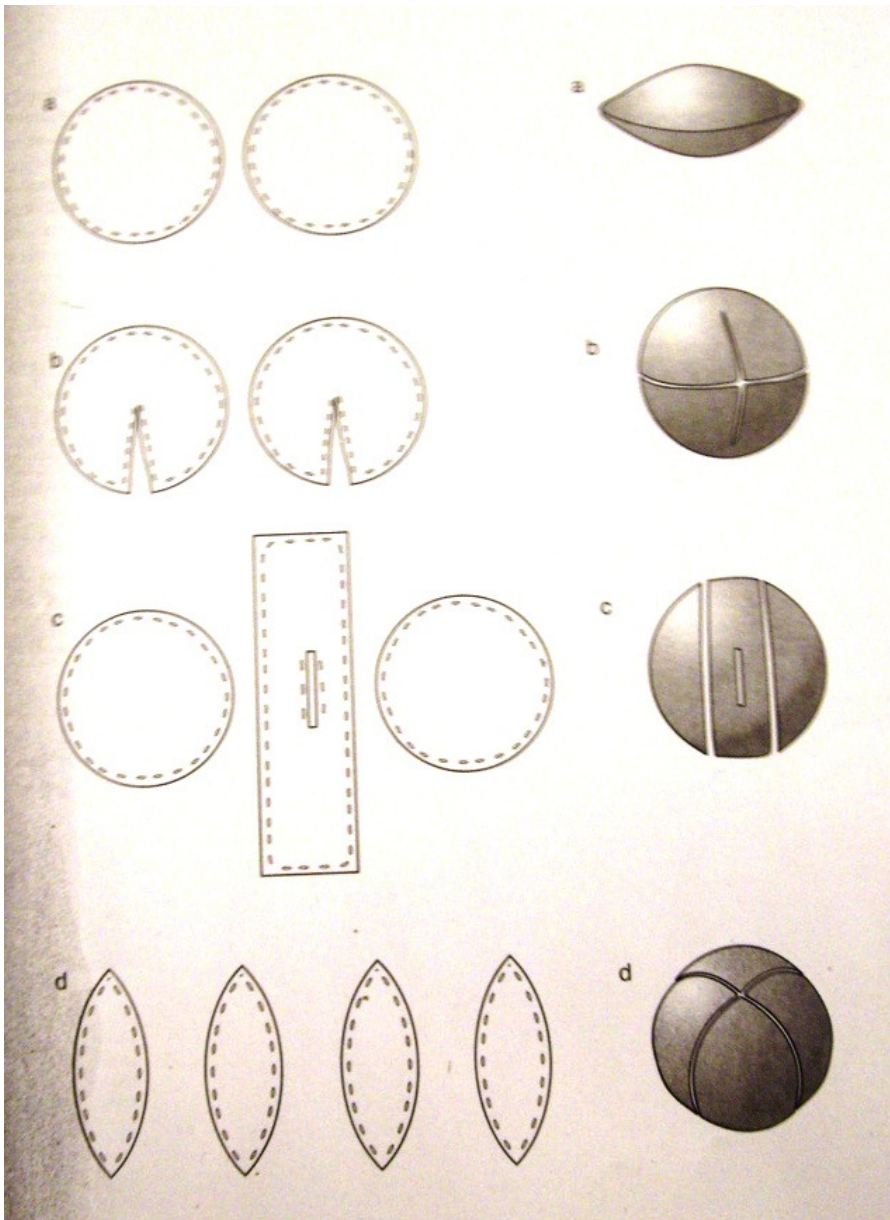

Illustration from York-L&L, page Figure 1728, 3407.

Additional Sources for Viking-era toys:

<http://www.regia.me.uk/pastimes.htm>

<http://aelflaed.homemail.com.au/doco/vikingtoychest.html>

<http://aelflaed.homemail.com.au/doco/dolls.html>

http://www.hurstwic.org/history/articles/daily_living/text/games_and_sports.htm

Topics Not Addressed:

Wooden tops and musical instruments are other reasonably frequent finds. Some basic information is provided in the supporting documentation, but I have yet to carefully examine and summarize the material.

Likewise, dice, gaming boards, and gaming pieces are known from Viking or associated contexts, but these also could be adult playthings and so have not been evaluated or represented in this project.

Conclusion

What I once imagined to be a weekend's lark in the library has grown to be a year-long quest for information. While the information on young Norse of the Viking and medieval eras is scarce, it is a challenge worth perusing and collecting. Even now, many hours and dozens of pages later, I find that this subject merits further investigation.

Therefore, this remains a work in progress, particularly the organization of the bibliography and citations and the need to more fully integrate the information from some of the supporting documents into the project as a whole. I would also like to recreate some of the items that this research has brought to light, particularly the cradle found in the furniture section. (For the purposes of entering the Gulf Wars A&S competition, I actually have made a few examples of many of these finds. See separate reports of each of those items.)

And, of course, the archaeology of and scholarship on this period is always advancing and every year new information becomes available for evaluation and new inquiries into what it meant to be a Norse child in the middle ages.

Acknowledgements

Special thanks to Jois Corbet and Toussaint de Caluwe for teaching me to use a table saw and scroll saw and doing some of the major cuts on the Toddler's Chair. With their help, I was able to produce a working chair and still have all of my digits.

Thanks to Svein Tunheim for creating the child-sized arm ring.

Thanks to Katerinka for designing and stringing the bead necklaces as well as keeping me company while I finished various pieces.

Bibliography

Batey, Colleen. "A Viking-Age Bell from Freswick Links, Caithness." Medieval Archaeology 32 (1988): 213-16. http://ads.ahds.ac.uk/catalogue/adsdata/arch-769-1/ahds/dissemination/pdf/vol32/32_213_216.pdf

Becker, M. J. "Infanticide, child sacrifice and infant mortality rates: direct archaeological evidence as interpreted by human skeletal analysis." Old World Archaeology Newsletter 18 (1995): 24-31.

Buckberry, J., "Missing, presumed buried? Bone diagenesis and the under-representation of Anglo-Saxon children." Assemblage 5 (2000): 1-14.
<http://www.assemblage.group.shef.ac.uk/5/buckberr.html>

Crawford, Sally. "Children, Grave Goods, and Social Status in Early Anglo-Saxon England." In Children and Material Culture, edited by Joanna Sofaer Derevenski and Joanna R. Sofaer, 169-179. London: Routledge, 2000.

Crawford, Sally. "Children, death and the afterlife in Anglo-Saxon England." In The Archaeology of Anglo-Saxon England: basic readings in Anglo-Saxon England, edited by C. Karkov, 83-91. New York: Garland, 1999.

Crawford, Sally. Childhood in Anglo-Saxon England. Sutton: Stroud, 1999.

Crawford, Sally. "When do Anglo-Saxon children count?" Journal of Theoretical Archaeology 2 (1991): 17-24.

Dasen, V. Dwarfs in Ancient Egypt and Greece. Oxford: Clarendon Press, 1993.

Díaz-Andreu García, Margarita, and Sam Lucy. The archaeology of identity. Florence: Routledge; 2005. ISBN-13: 978-0415197458

Didsbury, P., "An Anglo-Saxon mammiform pottery vessel from Barton-on-Humber." Medieval Ceramics: Bulletin of the Medieval Pottery Research Group 16 (1992): 66-67.

Drinkall, Gail, Michael A. Foreman, and Martin Foreman The Anglo-Saxon Cemetery at Castledyke South, Barton-on-Humber. Sheffield: Sheffield Academic Press, 1997. ISBN: 1850756430

Dunwell, A. J., T. G. Cowiet, M. F. Bruceft, T. Neighbour, and A. R. Rees. "A Viking Age cemetery at Cnip, Uig, Isle of Lewis." Proc Soc Antiq Scot 125 (1995): 719-752, fiche 4: B9-G14.
http://ads.ahds.ac.uk/catalogue/adsdata/PSAS_2002/pdf/vol_125/125_719_752.pdf

Earwood, Caroline. Domestic wooden artefacts in Britain and Ireland from Neolithic to Viking times. Exeter: University of Exeter Press, 1993. ISBN: 0859893898

Fildes, V.A. Breasts, bottles and babies. A history of infant feedings. Edinburgh: Edinburgh University Press, 1986.

Fitzhugh, W, and Elisabeth I. Ward. Vikings: the North Atlantic Saga. Washington: Smithsonian Institution Press, 2000. ISBN: 156098970X

Gowland, R. L. and A. T. Chamberlain. "A Bayesian approach to ageing perinatal skeletal material from archaeological sites: implications for the evidence for infanticide in Roman-Britain." Journal of Archaeological Science 29 (2002): 677-685.

Graham-Campbell, James. Viking artefacts: a select catalogue. London: British Museum Publications, 1980. ISBN: 0714113549

Hanawalt, B. "Medievalists and the Study of Childhood." Speculum 77 (2002): 440-460.

Jacobson, Grethe. "The Position of Women in Scandinavia during the Viking Period." Master of Arts thesis, University of Wisconsin - Madison, 1978.

Kristjansson, Jonas. Icelandic Manuscripts – Sagas, History, and Art. Reykjavik: Icelandic Literary Society, 1993. ISBN: 9979-804-34-3

Kristjansson, Jonas. Islandske Sagaer og Handskrifter. Reykjavik: Saga Publishing, 1970.

Kuefler, M. S. "A Wryed Existence: attitudes toward children in Anglo-Saxon England." Journal of Social History 24 (1991): 823-834.

Lonnrot, Elias Jr., and Francis P. Magoun. The Kalevala: Or Poems of the Kaleva District. Cambridge: Harvard University Press, 1985. ISBN: 978-0674500105

MacGregor, A., A. J. Mainman, and N. S. H. Rogers. Craft, industry and everyday life: bone, antler, ivory and horn from Anglo-Scandinavian and Medieval York. (Series: The Archaeology of York. The small finds; 17/12) York: Council for British Archaeology, 1999. ISBN: 1872414990

Mainman, A. J., and N. S. H. Rogers. Craft, industry and everyday life: finds from Anglo-Scandinavian York. (Series: Archaeology of York. The small finds; 17/14) York : Council for British Archaeology, 2000. ISBN: 1902771117

Morris, Carole A. Craft, industry and everyday life: wood and woodworking in Anglo-Scandinavian and medieval York. (Series: The Archaeology of York. The small finds; 17/13) York: Council for British Archaeology, 2000. ISBN: 1902771109

Mould, Quita, Ian Carlisle, and Esther Cameron. Craft, industry and everyday life: leather and leatherworking in Anglo-Scandinavian and medieval York. (Series: The Archaeology of York. The small finds; 17/16) York: Council for British Archaeology, 2003. ISBN: 1902771362

Nenk, Beverley S., Sue Margeson, and Maurice Hurley. "Medieval Britain and Ireland in 1990." Medieval Archaeology 35 (1991): 126-238.

http://ads.ahds.ac.uk/catalogue/adsdata/arch-769-1/ahds/dissemination/pdf/vol35/35_126_238_med_britain.pdf

Ohlgren, Thomas. Anglo-Saxon Textual Illustration: Photographs of Sixteen Manuscripts With Descriptions and Index. Kalamazoo: Western Michigan University, 1992.

ISBN: 978-1879288102

Østergård, Else. Woven into the Earth: Textiles from Norse Greenland. Oxford: Aarhus University Press, 2004. ISBN: 8772889357

Oxenstierna, Eric Graf. Die Wikinger. Stuttgart : Kohlhammer, 1959. OCLC:04168624

Oxenstierna, Eric Graf. The Norsemen. Translated and edited by Catherine Hutter. London: Studio Vista, 1966.

Pentikäinen, J. "Child abandonment as an indicator of christianization in the Nordic Countries." in Old Norse and Finnish Religions and Cultic Place-Names, edited by T. Ahlbäck, 72-91. The Donner Institute for Research in Religious and Cultural History, 1990.

Plank, F. "Coming into being among the Anglo-Saxons." In Current Topics in English Historical Linguistics: Proceedings of the Second International Conference on English Historical Linguistics Held at Odense University, 13-15 April 1981, edited by M. Davenport, E. Hansen and H. F. Nielsen, 239-278. Odense: Odense University Press, 1983.

Rahmani, L.Y. "Finds from a sixth to seventh centuries site near Gaza: I. The toys." Israel Exploration Journal 31(1981): 72-80.

Redfern, R. "The influence of culture upon childhood: an osteological study of Iron Age and Romano-British Dorset" in Age and Ageing in the Roman Empire, edited by Mary Harlow and Ray Laurence, 171-194. Portsmouth, R.I. : Journal of Roman Archaeology, 2007. ISBN: 9781887829656

Richards, M. P., B.T. Fuller and T.I. Molleson. "Stable isotope palaeodietary study of humans and fauna from the multi-period (Iron Age, Viking and Late Medieval) site of Newark Bay, Orkney." Journal of Archaeological Science 33 (2006):122-131.

Roesdahl, Else, and David M. Wilson. From Viking to Crusader: the Scandinavians and Europe, 800-1200. New York: Rizzoli, 1992. ISBN: 0847816257

Scott, E. "Animal and infant burials in Romano-British villas: a revitalization movement." In Sacred and profane - Proceedings of a conference on Archaeology, Ritual and Religion, edited by P. Garwood et al. Oxbow, Oxford 1991, 115-121.

Sephton, John, trans. Erik the Red's Saga. Liverpool: D. Marples & Co, 1880.
<http://www.gutenberg.org/files/17946/17946-h/17946-h.htm>

Wahloo, Claes. Metropolis: Arkebiskoparnas och kungarnas Lund. Lund: Wallin & Dalholm, 2001. ISBN: 91-89442-229

Webpages:

"The Saga of Egil Skallagrimsson" <http://www.sacred-texts.com/neu/egil/>

"The Story of the Ere-Dwellers (Eyrbyggja saga)" <http://omacl.org/EreDwellers/>

"The Story of Burn Njal (Njal's saga)" <http://omacl.org/Njal/>

"Rigsthula" <http://www.sacred-texts.com/neu/poe/poe14.htm>

"Hurstwic" <http://www.valhs.org/>

"An Infant's Clothing"

<http://www.mathildegirlgenius.com/Documentation/KASF2006/InfantOutfit.pdf>

"Herjofsnes 44" <http://www.forest.gen.nz/Medieval/articles/garments/H44/H44.html>

"Hats and Headwear" <http://personal.utulsa.edu/~marc-carlson/cloth/herjo186.html>

"Tunic" <http://personal.utulsa.edu/~marc-carlson/cloth/herjo162.html>

(Bowl from Jarlshof) <http://images.scran.ac.uk/RB/images/thumb/0098/00984728.jpg>

"Food Vessel, Keenoge" <http://www.museum.ie/en/list/artefacts.aspx?article=d4314fcc-70c0-4c5a-84c4-5f959e32c905>

"Vase" <http://www.museum.ie/en/list/artefacts.aspx?article=48429a1c-1b04-4cff-8482-b505bfeed3d9>

"Vase" <http://www.museum.ie/en/list/artefacts.aspx?article=cd17d5bc-e943-4843-b4dd-d40a02aacc02>

"Toys (toy duck)"

<http://www.historiska.se/template/RelatedImagePopup.aspx?parent=21282&image=21283>

"Viking Unst Project" <http://tinyurl.com/toyquern> or

<http://www.shetland-heritage.co.uk/amenitytrust/archaeology/unst/unst.html>

"Old Scatness Broch"

http://www.shetland-heritage.co.uk/amenitytrust/archaeology/scatness/scatness_1999.html

"The Orkney Hood" <http://www.archaeologyonline.org/Documents/TheOrkneyHood.pdf>

Medieval Dublin – Catalogue of Exhibition. Ard-Mhusaem na H-Eireann, 1982.
The Archaeology of Infancy and Infant Death
<http://www.oxbowbooks.com/bookinfo.cfm/ID/25651//Location/DBBC>
Bolla þátrr Bollasonar in Íslendinga Sögur
Floammanna Saga